

This Stan Is Your Stan

Pretend that your desk is a piece of land floating in the ocean. Each person on your table is a “state”. You will divide the land into 2-4 states by using markers and demarcate the countries.

Create a name for each for your states. Write down the demographics of your state and each table must be able to show examples of a nation-state, multinational state, multistate nation, and stateless nation. Remember, your table should plan this carefully before drawing anything.

After you have completed the steps above, your table must utilize three of the four boundary disputes: definitional, locational, operational, or allocational in a creative fashion. You must somehow demonstrate on your table that these disputes are occurring.

Finally, you must create a supranational organization, name it, and write what the supranational organization is for and be able to explain how it affects your states.